Message from Emily Wadsworth founder of,

Chromosome Structure XY & Variations

ABOUT US

I have been approved to have an online petition asking our parliament to have a national awareness day for individuals living with a sex chromosome variation.

It's not easy sharing our family's story but we need to make people aware. A lot of people don't like to share their experiences so these variations of chromosomes can be silent.

This is something I have been tirelessly been trying to get off the ground for almost a year and now we need your help!

This online petition will only remain online till the 7th MARCH 2017

Why should you sign it?

In Australia, individuals and parents of children living with a number of sex chromosome variations, have minimal knowledge of what the impact of living with this means.

There is no care plan, no treatment framework within the health industry and no plan for when children start primary school- for teachers and parents.

These duplications affect most areas of one's body. From muscle tone, to hormone imbalances, fertility, cognitive difficulties, muscle mass issues, autism... a lot from a whole extra chromosome.

A national awareness day is a foundation for families, health industry and the education sector to start raising awareness and start to open our eyes to a complex condition that should be properly managed.
